

Data Protection Policy

By using our Site and submitting your personal data, you consent to this Data Protection Policy

Data Protection

The Site Administration shall not transfer or reveal the information submitted by User when registering or further working with the Site to third parties. In the cases contemplated by the legislation of the state User operates in, it is permitted that personal data be shared.

Data Collection

User is to submit personal data for the communication process on the Site. To verify the data submitted the Site reserves the right to demand User's identity online or offline.

Data Transfers

The Site processes User's personal data for the operation and improvement of service quality. The transfer of User's personal data may be necessary for a bank or payment processor in case of User's fulfilling money transaction. The Site Administration ensures adequate security measures to be used to protect User's personal data. The disclosure of personal data is possible in the cases contemplated by the legislation and in the cases the Site Administration considers this disclosure to be necessary to comply with the law or court order, or User's legal operation with the Site. There are no other cases of personal data being transferred to third parties.

Communication

Upon personal data being submitted, User gets the Registration Confirmation email. User may terminate getting information from the Site.

External Links

Our Site can contain links to the websites of third parties. We assume no responsibility for the content, quality and data protection policy of the websites of third parties. This current Data Protection Policy is valid only for the information posted on this Site.

Security

The Site Administration ensures the protection of User's account from the risks of unauthorized disclosure or unauthorized access.

Notification of Changes

The Site Administration reserves the right to make modifications to Data Protection Policy without any notification. The modification comes into effect the moment it's been posted. Users may monitor the modifications in Data Protection Policy independently.